Making early education better for children

EYFS Course

Learning and Development in the Prime Areas of the Revised EYFS

Friday 16th March 2012

9.30am – 3.00pm

Madeleine Lindley Training & Conference Centre, Oldham, OL9 9XA

About Early Years Matters

Recognised for our significant involvement in the development of the EYFS and Birth to Three Matters as well as our contribution to the EYFS review, we are dedicated to making early education better for young children and those who work with them. A company with a reputation for providing high quality, affordable training, to early years schools, nurseries and settings, we know this course will be a 'breath of fresh air' for all early years practitioners. How do we know? Because delegates have told us our training is outstanding:

'An excellent day all round and one of the best value training events I have attended. The materials provided gave me a clear overview and will help me remember the detail long after the event.'
(Independent Early Years Consultant)

'I have received some excellent feedback from staff and they all found it extremely useful. The training was exactly as I had hoped and .. presented in a non-threatening, informative manner. I will not hesitate to recommend you to others.'
(EYFS Coordinator)

Ann Langston & Dr Jonathan Doherty

Course venue:

Madeleine Lindley Ltd
TRAINING & CONFERENCE CENTRE

Madeleine Lindley Training & Conference Centre
Oldham OL9 9XA

Led by Ann Langston, who supported Dame Clare Tickell's Review of the EYFS. The course will support participants in understanding the changes to the Prime Areas in the revised EYFS as they begin to plan its implementation. This is a vital course to ensure that observation, assessment and planning are in line with the new guidance. It will also help practitioners in making judgements about the balance between the Prime and Specific Areas of the revised EYFS and the three characteristics of effective learning.

This course will provide opportunities to:

- Explore child development, brain development, early learning and ways to develop the Prime areas
- Consider requirements for observation, on-going and summative assessment and planning in the revised EYFS
- Explore the 24-36 month assessment, ways of shaping a targeted plan for early intervention and approaches to assessment in the revised Early Years Foundation Stage Profile
- Get to grips with the shifting balance between Prime and Specific Areas with under two's and with children aged two to five and beyond

Attendance Certificate and Lunch included

Full access to the Madeleine Lindley Book Centre
